Things to Know

- Organizations using ScreenBeam can disable mDNS on their network, but users will have to connect their device to ScreenBeam wifi each time before mirroring. Additionally, admins will not be able to mass deploy, update or manage any ScreenBeam devices using the ScreenBeam CMS if mDNS is disabled. Manual updates via USB flash drive or local management interface will be required for every receiver.
- You can test a full-featured Ditto trial for free right now (nothing to ship, setup takes minutes).
- ScreenBeam digital signage is entirely HTML-based content. Integration with paid third-party signage solutions is available.
- Ditto admins can send custom on-screen alerts or use the Common Alert Protocol (CAP) to automatically send emergency alerts. ScreenBeam offers custom alerts.

What people are saying about Ditto

"Start here. We tried many other versions of screen sharing and this is the best."

— MARK R, G2 REVIEWER

"Setup takes minutes, and installation...takes seconds. Everything works seamlessly and easily."

— CHRISTOPHER O, SENIOR ASSOCIATE CONSULTANT

"We're now able to have anyone who visits our office connect...via Ditto, saving a lot of time and headaches with different adapters and wireless standards. It puts different users on the same page for presentations and removes potential headaches."

— JONATHAN F, DIRECTOR, MEDIA & TECHNOLOGY

"When they're not streaming and mirroring content, the fact that [Ditto] goes back to the digital signage has really changed the perception around what the teachers are thinking about and how they're using that screen. We have images of students who have done great work on screens in common areas to recognize their efforts. It gives encouragement and builds a sense of community."

— PETER CHEEL, ICT MANAGER
